'Judd at Conran' collection, with the Judd Foundation and Schellmann Furniture

PHOTOGRAPHY: JOHN SHORT WRITER: PEI-RU KEH

The late US artist Donald Judd had a posthumous moment last year, with a surge in projects bearing his name. In New York's SoHo, a new arm of the Judd Foundation opened in his former studio (W*171). Meanwhile, The Conran Shop became the first major retailer to sell his furniture designs. Motivated by the need to furnish his home in Marfa, Texas, in the 1970s, Judd's foray into furniture was characterised by the same simplicity that typified his art, utilising materials such as raw pine, plywood, hardwood and sheet metal. The 'Judd at Conran' collection features five chairs, a library desk, a bed and this finely crafted standing desk. Made in collaboration with the Judd Foundation and Schellmann Furniture (W*145), the newly available desk is the ultimate altar piece for the Judd devotee. ★
